PREFACE

In the following catalogue the books have been arranged strictly under authors, and their full names have been given wherever it was possible to ascertain them. Under all the principal writers the complete works come first, followed by collections of two or more works, and finally the single works. In each case the books in the original language precede the translations, and the single works are arranged alphabetically according to the first word of the title.

Under the entry Bible, the more scientific arrangement, in which the original languages come first, has been discarded in favour of the simpler, in which all the languages are arranged alphabetically. All commentaries which contain the complete text of the Bible or parts of the Bible are catalogued under that head.

In the case of a few authors whose works consist almost entirely of political speeches, as for instance Charles I. or Sir Thomas Fairfax, the speeches have been arranged chronologically. Anonymous books are placed under the first word of the title other than A, An, or The; but in cases where the early editions of a book were anonymous, but were afterwards published under the author's name, they are put under his name with a cross-reference from the title. In the case of pamphlets whose titles begin with a numeral, showing that they are a continuation of an earlier work (e.g. Second letter to the people of England), they are placed under the word following the numeral. In all cases where the author of an anonymous book has been identified, his name is added to the entry, within brackets, and a cross-reference given from his name.

Peers have been catalogued in most cases under their titles as being the more familiar form of name, but cross-references have been given from the family name.

English Dept.
JUL 3 1941

Proceedings of Societies, when the name of the town with which the society is associated is mentioned in the title, are catalogued under the town; otherwise they are treated as anonymous and are catalogued under the first word.

In the case of French names no strict rule has been followed, for the territorial name has been chosen in place of the family name, when more familiar to the average reader. Molière, for instance, has been catalogued under that name rather than under Poquelin, Voltaire under Voltaire rather than under Arouet. In all cases, however, copious cross-references have been given to facilitate the use of the catalogue.

It is proposed to issue, as soon as possible after the completion of the present work, a supplementary volume containing a subject index to the entire contents of the Library.
